It is in those forty years that he spent as a shepherd in the land of Midian, where many of us find ourselves today. When we look at the life of Moses, his life will be basically divided into three major sections. 1. His first forty years was spent in Egypt in the Pharaoh’s court. 2. The next forty years he was a shepherd in the land of Midian. 3. His final forty years he would lead the ...

Commentary on the Books of Joshua and Ruth

He died in sight of the land west of Jordan, and Joshua was appointed to lead the people into the land. This book reveals the fulfillment of the second promise to Abraham – the land promise. Note 11:23; 21:43-45; 23:14. As such, Joshua is a symbol of Jesus, who leads us to the eternal promised land (Heb. 4:5-16).

Joshua. The story of Joshua's conquest of Canaan is the story of the culmination of the ancient Hebrews' return to Canaan. To Joshua and his followers, this was the Promised Land of the covenant between God and the chosen people. According to the Bible, the Canaanite cities were destroyed and the Canaanites attacked until "there was no one left who breathed."¹ Assuming ...

the people reached the Promised Land and settled there after Moses' death. "Judges" led the people until about 1000 B.C. when Kings were installed, yet these were still thought of as people doing God's bidding (not as other nations' kings which had all power being theirs alone). King David and King Solomon led a united, strong country -- which became divided after Solomon's death: ...
